AMUSEMENTS.

FAUST.

The finish of the apotheosis of Porter J. White's version of Faust is decidedly original; in scenic splendor and electric novelty it abounds. But three figures are presented—Mephisto, Marguerite and Faust. Faust would fain persuade Marguerite to escape
with him by the aid of Mephistopheles, but in the instinct of her heart she finds an invincible aversion to the fiend; she chooses death and ignominy rather than life and love, if of his giving. At her final refusal, Mephis-topheles proclaims that "she is judged," a voice from above that
"she is saved," the action terminates; Mephistopheles vanishes from our sight, as into boundless space.

Faust will be presented at the Paris
Grand, Saturday, February 18.

A DANGEROUS HABIT.

Gladstone's Physician Gives Warning Against a Growing American Custom.

The growing habit amongst Americans of taking a mint tablet or some other so called digestive after eating a hearty meal, is something that Sir Andrew Clarke, Mr. Gladstone's physician advises strongly against, saying: "It is absolutely dangerous to take into the stomach remedies which are popularly supposed to aid in the digestion of food."

There is nothing known to the science of medicine that can perform the work of the human stomach.
Drugs do not and cannot digest the food. They simply decompose it.
What can we do more revolting or disgusting than the thought of taking something into the stomach that is going to turn the good food you have eaten into a mass of corruption.

The only way to overcome indigestion and its evil effects is to remove all irritation, congestion and inflammation for the stomach, liver and intestines, and Mi-o-na is the only agent known that will do this.

When a Mi-o-na tablet is taken before each meal every trace of irritation and inflammation is removed from the stomach and digestive system, and those organs will extract from the food all that goes to make good, rich blood, firm muscle, steady nerves and a sound healthy body.
If you suffer with headaches, indigestion flatulency, spots before the eyes, vertigo, or dizziness, palpitation of the heart, sleeplessness, or any stomach trouble, get a fifty cent box of Mi-o-na from Clarke & Co., one of our most reliable drug firms, whose faith in the remedy is shown by their offer to return the money if Mi-o-na does not give complete satisfaction.

Fire Fend After Winchester.

Winchester was visited by another disastrous fire Wednesday afternoon.
Between 12:30 and 1 o'clock fire was discovered in the Scobee & Williams spoke factory, originating in the engine room. In a few minutes the building was in flames and it was only by the quickest action on the part of the firemen that prevented the entire destruction of the factory and the raw material in the yards. The loss is estimated at $25,000 with from $12, 000 to $15,000 insurance.

CZAR HESITATES.

Imperial Decision to Summon the Zemsky Zabor Has Not Yet Been Taken.

QUESTION CAREFULLY CONSIDERED

The Court Party is in Strong Opposition to the Revival of This Ancient Parliament.

It Is Feared It Would Undertake, If Called Into Being, To Elect a New Ruler and Overthrow the Autocracy.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 16.—In spite of Emperor Nicholas' personal inclination in favor of the zemsky zabor, as intimated to Count Leo Deonovitch Tolstoi, the imperial decision to summon this parliament has not yet been taken. The emperor is carefully weighing arguments for and against the plan before committing himself to this course. This statement is made on the authority of perhaps the most liberal of the emperor's ministers.

"I myself have frankly urged upon his majesty," said the minister, "the view that the time has come when the people should no longer be denied a voice in the government; and the same counsel has been given by many others, who, like me, believe that the moderate liberal element which has been drifting away, can thus be rallied to the support of the government. His majesty received our views sympathetically and I believe is personally inclined to adopt the course we suggest. He now is carefully deliberating upon the subject.

"It is no secret, however, that powerful influences about his majesty are pressing the contrary view and advancing strong arguments which can not lightly be thrust aside, even if the decision is finally favorable."

Wields Immense Power.

It is said that one of the arguments used by the court party against the revival of the zemsky zabor is the fact that the body in the old days wielded immense power, being itself responsible for the elevation of the Romanoff dynasty to the throne and therefore it might even undertake, if again called into being, to elect a new ruler. Generally speaking, the position of the opposition to the zemsky zabor is well voiced editorially in the Moscow Gazette, the leading exponent of the absolutely autocratic of Russia, in which it is prophesied that any sort of national assembly will lead to a struggle between it and the emperor, and this controversy inevitably will end in the overthrow of the autocracy. The article draws a parallel between the present political situation and the Nihilist terrorism which almost wrung a constitution from Alexander II, and, after his assassination, confronted Alexander III, with a choice of alternatives.

THE KANSAS OIL FIGHT.

The Legislature Passed a Bill Providing For a State Refinery.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 16.—A bill providing for the establishment of a state oil refinery was passed by the Kansas house of representatives by a vote of 91 to 30. The bill had already passed the senate. Gov. Hoch will sign the bill at once. Under its provisions a refinery will be created at Peru, Kan. Another penitentiary will be built there to provide convict labor for the refinery. An appropriation of $410,000 is made for building and maintaining the refinery and penitentiary.

ALLEGED FORGED CHECK.

John T. W. Stengel Charged With Attempt To Pass It.

St. Louis, Feb. 16.—A man giving his name as John T. W. Stengel, of Louisville, Ky., was arrested here on the charge of having tried to pass a check for $400, signed George Huls-witt, the name of a Philadelphia National League baseball player, under which name he registered at a hotel and, whom the police say, he has been impersonating.

RAIDERS WIPED OUT.

Refused Quarters and Fought Until Last Man Was Killed.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 16.—Special dispatches from Mukden report the wiping out of an entire detachment of Japanese cavalry, which had destroyed the railway bridge between Mukden and Harbin. Russian cavalry overtook the raiders, who are said to have refused quarters and fought until the last man was killed.

Rapid Telegraphic Apparatus.

Paris, Feb. 16.—Interesting experiments were made between Paris and London with a new rapid telegraphic apparatus. The inventors say that the instrument can transmit 40,000 words an hour with the help of six clerks.

War Material For the Japanese.

San Francisco, Feb. 16.—The Pacific mail steamship Korea sailed for the Orient, via Honolulu, with a cargo of 11,000 tons of merchandise, which includes a large amount of war material for the Japanese government.

Preparing For a General Attack.

Mukden, Feb. 16.—The Japanese began a heavy cannonading on the Russian right flank and the firing continued all through the next day. It is thought the Japanese are preparing for a general attack.

ANOTHER BEEF TRUST.

Now Bossy Won't Give Down.

THE NEW PROTOCOL

President Roosevelt in a Message Transmitted it to United States Senate.

WILL MAINTAIN MONROE DOCTRINE

Just Claims Contracted by South and Central American Republics and West Indies Must Be Paid.

In the Interest of Peace This Government Will Take Over the Control of the Revenues in Santo Domingo.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The president's message transmitting to the senate the new Santo Domingo protocol was read at an executive session following the passage of a mass of unobjectionable pension bills. The leading feature of the measure was that in order to maintain the Monroe doctrine it was necessary for the United States to see that just claims, contracted by South and Central American republics, and those of the West Indies, should be paid and that therefore it was in the interest of peace for this government to take over the control of the revenues in Santo Domingo.

This subject of the Monroe doctrine is discussed at some length, especially as regards the relations of the United States to the republics of the south. In protecting these republics and guaranteeing their territorial integrity it is said in the message to be necessary also to see that just debts and obligations contracted by these republics are paid so that foreign intervention in the affairs of such republics may be avoided. The protocol was not read at the executive session, but was at once referred to the committee on foreign relations.

Senate Will Investigate.

Senator Bacon's resolution asking that the senate committee on foreign relations investigate and report to the senate whether the protocol of an agreement, under which the United States authorities undertook to administer certain of the customs offices of the Dominican government in order to satisfy a claim of the San Domingo Improvement Co., is valid, having been made without the consent of the senate, was adopted and referred to a sub-committee to be presented by Chairman Cullom. The motion to refer the motion was made by Senator Bacon, who stated there were many questions of law involved and it was his desire that a non-partisan report be made.

An Irrigation Dam.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Senator Clark (Mont.), from the committee on foreign relations, reported favorably the bill authorizing the construction of an irrigation dam across the Rio Grande river between the United States and Mexico.

Omnibus Claims Bill.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The conference report on the omnibus claims bill agreed to carries $2,321,810 direct appropriations for 1,759 claimants. It refers to the court of claims bills amounting to from $500,000 to $750,000.

Smallpox in Tennessee.

Smithville, Tenn., Feb. 16.—There are 34 cases of smallpox scattered over this county, many of them being at Dowelltown. The disease is said to have been brought to Dowelltown from Davidson county.

The Philippine Scouts.

St. Louis, Feb. 16.—Nearly 300 Filipinos, comprising the battalion of Philippine scouts, who have been at the World's fair for nearly a year, left this city in a special train for Port Thomas, Ky.

The Galveston in Commission.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 16.—The United States cruiser Galveston, partially built at Trigg's shipyards, Richmond, Va., and brought to the Norfolk navy yard was placed in commission here.

IN THE CONGRESS.

Naval Appropriation Bill Discussed in the House of Representatives.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The senate continued, but did not conclude, consideration of the bill making appropriations for the support of the government of the District of Columbia. While the bill was before the senate Mr. Elkins took exception to an item for the construction of a local bridge as in the interest of speculators and made a general plea for economy in the matter of appropriations. The Swayne impeachment trial held the attention of the senate for two hours.

The question of what the policy of the government should be with respect to the upbuilding of the navy was again threshed out in the house during the consideration of the naval appropriation bill, the debate developing much opposition to the proposed adoption of two battleships to the naval system. The defense of the Philippines played an important part in the discussion while the events of the war in the far east from a naval point of view are given prominence by the advocates of an increased navy.

GIVEN THE PALLIUM.

Powers of an Archbishop Vested Upon Most-Rev. Henry Moeller.

Cincinnati, Feb. 16.—The full powers of an archbishop of the Roman Catholic church were vested upon Most Rev. Henry Moeller at St. Peter's cathedral, when Cardinal Gibbons placed over his shoulders a plain wooden band—the pallium. The cathedral was crowded to the walls, and there was present one of the most distinguished gatherings of church dignitaries ever assembled at Cincinnati. The altar was a blaze of glory, with its myriad of candle lights, and the noble edifice was tastefully decorated.

IN CHARGE OF AN OFFICER.

President Hunt, of the Defunct Pan-American Bank in Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—President William M. Hunt, of the defunct Pan-American bank, arrived in Chicago in charge of an officer, and was given a cell in the county jail. He would not talk, declaring that he was tired and cold. He expects to be released on bail. His friends will be compelled to furnish security to the amount of $14,000. The banker was indicted on four charges of receiving money, knowing his bank to be insolvent.

FORMED AN ORGANIZATION.

The National Association of Machinery Supply Dealers.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 16.—The National Association of Machinery Supply Dealers was organized here by machinery supply men of northern states between New York and Milwaukee. The purpose of the association is said to be co-operation in the conduct of the business. It is expected that this new organization will affiliate with the similar organization already in existence in the south.

Respite Granted Mrs. Edwards.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 16.—The pardon board granted a continuance of 30 days in the case of Mrs. Kate Edwards, who had been sentenced to hang for the murder of her husband. Her colored paramour and alleged accomplice, Samuel Greason, was granted a rehearing.

Japanese Navy Will Be Increased.

Victoria, B. C., Feb. 16.—The steamship Tremont, which arrived from Japanese ports, brought news that 50 vessels will be added to Japan's naval strength as a result of salvage operations at Port Arthur in raising sunken vessels.

GEN. LEW WALLACE

Surrounded by His Family He Passed Away at His Home

Aged 78 Years.

WAS THE AUTHOR OF "BEN HUR."

One time Minister to Turkey and a Veteran of the Mexican and Civil Wars.

For More Than a Year He Had Been Unable To Properly Assimilate Food, Making It Difficult To Fight Against Death.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Feb. 16.—Surrounded by his family, Gen. Lew Wallace, author of "Ben Hur," one time minister to Turkey and veteran of the Mexican and civil wars, died at his home in this city, aged 78 years.

The health of Gen. Wallace has been waning for several years, and for months, despite the efforts of the family to keep the public in ignorance of his true condition, it has been generally known that his vigorous constitution could not much longer withstand the ravages of a wasting disease.

For more than a year he had been unable to properly assimilate food and this, together with his extreme age, made more difficult his fight against death. At no time has he ever confessed his belief that the end was near, and his rugged constitution and remarkable vitality have been responsible for prolonging his life several months.

GEN. LEW WALLACE.

Deathbed Scene.

The deathbed scene was one of calmness. Besides his physician, only his wife, his son, Henry Wallace, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Wallace were present.

When told by his physician that he was dying, Gen. Wallace was perfectly calm and his last words were expressions of cheer to his grief-stricken family. Bidding them farewell, he said:

"I am ready to meet my Maker," and lapsed into unconsciousness from which he did not recover.

The general remained conscious almost to the last. At the deathbed were his wife, Henry Wallace, his only son, and Mrs. Wallace, together with the physician and two nurses. The two little grandchildren of Gen. Wallace, whom he held very dear, were in the house, but they had been sent to bed by their parents, after being taken to the sick chamber to bid their beloved grandfather the last good-bye.

Death Resulted From Starvation.

This scene was singularly pathetic. In the summer time they were the constant companions of the general, and took almost daily excursions with him to the country place, "Water Babble," five miles from the city. In their childish innocence they did not realize they were looking for the last time upon him they loved so well, and they waved him a good-bye as they left the bedside attired in their night clothes.

The real and remarkable love that existed between Gen. Wallace and his wife was displayed in all of its intensity. Refusing to believe the companion of her life was to be thus taken from her, Mrs. Wallace clung to her husband in heartrending sorrow. The dying man proved again his courage by trying in his feeble way to console her.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wallace were grief-stricken. Both joined in trying to comfort Mrs. Wallace, and the scene when death came was touching in the extreme.

Dr. Ristine said that the direct cause of the general's death was exhaustion, resulting from starvation.

Death of Gen. John B. Frisbie's Wife.

Mexico City, Feb. 16.—Francisca Guadalupe Vallejo, wife of Gen. John B. Frisbie, old and wealthy American resident here, is dead of pneumonia. Mrs. Frisbie was the first white child born in the valley of Sonoma, California.

Lobby Work Prohibited.

St. Louis, Feb. 16.—United States district attorneys and marshals received an order from Attorney General Moody prohibiting them or any of their employees from doing any kind of lobby work before the state legislature.

Rope Broke at an Execution.

Bridgeton, N. J., Feb. 16.—When the attempt was made to hang Frank Ralsinger the rope broke and Ralsinger dropped to the ground. The fall broke his neck and he was pronounced dead in ten minutes.

FACE LIKE RAW BEEF.

Burning Up with a Terrible Itching Eczema—Speedily Cured by Cuticura.

"The Cuticura Remedies cured me of a terrible eczema from which I had suffered agony and pain for eight long years, being unable to obtain any help from the best doctors, and trying many remedies without success. My scalp was covered with scabs and my face was like a piece of raw beef, my eyebrows and lashes were falling out, and I felt as if burning up from the terrible itching and pain. Cuticura gave me relief the very first day, and made a complete cure in a short time. To my very great joy, my head and face are now clear and well.—Miss Mary M. Fay, 75 West Main St., Westboro, Mass."

FOR ENGLISH CONSUMPTION

Kind of Stories Related About America at Some of the London Luncheons.

At a recent dinner in London the conversation turned on the subject of lynchings in the United States. It was the general opinion that a rope was the chief end of a man in America. Finally, related Modern Society, the hostess turned to an American, who had taken no part in the conversation, and said:

"You, sir, must often have seen these affairs."

"Yes," he replied, "we take a kind of municipal pride in seeing which city can show the greatest number of lynchings yearly."

"Oh, do tell us about a lynching you have seen yourself," broke in a half dozen voices at once.
"The night before I sailed for England," said the American, "I was given a dinner to a party of intimate friends, when a colored waiter spilled a plate of soup over the gown of a lady at an adjoining table. The gown was utterly ruined, and the gentlemen of her party at once seized the waiter, tied a rope around his neck, and, at a signal from the injured lady, swung him into the air."

"Horrible!" said the hostess, with a shudder.

"And did you actually see this yourself?"

"Well, no," said the American, apologetically. "Just at that time I was downstairs killing the chef for putting mustard in the blancmange."

READS THE BOOK.

"The Road to Wellville" Pointed the Way.

Down at Hot Springs, Ark., the visitors have all sorts of complaints, but it is a subject of remark that the great majority of them have some trouble with stomach and bowels. This may be partly attributed to the heavy medicines.

Naturally, under the conditions, the question of food is very prominent.

A young man states that he had suffered for nine years from stomach and bowel trouble, had two operations which did not cure, and was at last threatened with appendicitis.

He went to Hot Springs for rheumatism, and his stomach trouble got worse. One day at breakfast the waiter, knowing his condition, suggested he try Grape-Nuts and cream, which he did, and found the food agreed with him perfectly.

After the second day he began to sleep peacefully at night, different than he had for years. The perfect digestion of the food quieted his nervous system and made sleep possible.

THE FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The senate heard the first witness called in connection with the impeachment proceedings against Judge Swayne, of Florida, and thus entered upon the real work of the trial. The statement of the case on behalf of the house was made by Manager Palmer, who went over the various charges against Judge Swayne, and said it was the expectation of the managers that all of them would be proven. The witnesses heard testified concerning hotel bills paid by Judge Swayne while he held court in Texas. It was decided to devote the time between 2 and 5 o'clock each day to the Swayne inquiry. The following bills were passed: Donating condemned bronze cannon to the G. A. R. for the purpose of making badges; authorizing the secretary of war to sell magazine rifles to rifle clubs; referring to the court of claims the claim of Madison county, Kentucky, against the United States for a refund of money paid to the collector of internal revenue; prohibiting the use of government devices to indicate the quality of gold used in the arts.

After maintaining its record for the rapid disposition of private pension bills, 433 being passed in an hour and a half, the house considered for a short while the bill providing a government for the Panama canal zone.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The senate heard ten witnesses in the Swayne impeachment trial and devoted the remainder of its time to the consideration of the agricultural appropriations bill. The major portion of the debate in connection with the appropriation bill was based on an amendment suggested by Mr. Bacon, providing for semi-monthly reports on the condition of the cotton crop, which was amended so as to cover the last five months of the year, and was adopted.

Not in recent years has the house witnessed such a spectacle as it did with Mr. Sullivan (Mass.) and William R. Hearst (N. Y.) as the central figures. Both indulged in personalities of the gravest character and so stirred the house as to arouse among certain members a feeling of the greatest indignation. Mr. Sullivan heaped upon Mr. Hearst a tirade of denunciation while the latter by implication charged Mr. Sullivan with complicity in a murder.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The senate passed the agricultural appropriation bill and began consideration of the bill making appropriations for the District of Columbia. The Hansbrough amendment to the agricultural bill relative to drawbacks on the duty on wheat was agreed to after an extended debate in which tariff questions figured to a considerable extent.

The house devoted considerable time to the consideration of the naval appropriation bill. Mr. Littlefield speaking at length regarding the necessity for keeping appropriations within the limits of the revenues of the country. The second chapter of the episode between Mr. Sullivan (Mass.) and Mr. Hearst (N. Y.), occurred in the house, when Mr. Sullivan again took the floor on a question of privilege and related the circumstances leading up to the indictment and conviction of his father and himself for manslaughter. In decided contrast with the remarks of the day before, when the two men heaped upon each other epithets and charges of a serious nature, Mr. Sullivan's statement was devoid of any further attack on his colleague and was a straight recitation of the occurrence referred to by Mr. Hearst. Mr. Sullivan admitted the charge, but said that he himself had only been technically guilty and was permitted to leave the court a free man without serving a day's imprisonment or being subjected to a fine.

THE LINCOLN DINNER.

President Roosevelt Was the Guest of Honor of the Republican Club.

New York, Feb. 14.—As the guest of honor at the Lincoln dinner of the Republican club in this city President Roosevelt made a speech on the race problem. He appealed to the north to make its friendship to the south all the greater because of the "embarrassment of conditions for which she is not alone responsible," declared that the heartiest acknowledgments are due to the ministers, law officers, grand juries, public men and "great daily newspapers in the south who have recently done such effective work in leading the crusade against lynching," and said that the problem was to "so adjust the relations between the races of different ethnic type that the backward race be trained so that it may enter into the possession of true freedom, while the forward race is enabled to preserve unharmed the high civilization wrought out by its forefathers."

The Inaugural Ball.

Washington, Feb. 14.—Treasurer Milton E. Allen, of the inaugural committee, stated that tickets for the inaugural ball, to be held on the night of March 4, are being sold at a rapid rate and expects the aggregate sales to break all records.

In Robes of State.

London, Feb. 15.—King Edward and queen Alexandra both gave sittings in their robes of state to John Collin Forbes, who is commissioned by the Canadian government to paint portraits of their majesties for the Dominion houses of parliament.

Will Participate in Inaugural Parade.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Word reached the inaugural committee that an entire brigade of the New Jersey National guard will participate in the inaugural parade, and will serve as the personal escort of Gov. Stokes.

Favorable Report Authorized.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce authorized a favorable report on a bill granting bronze medals to railway employees who shall display heroism and daring in the saving of life.

THE SHAKER PEOPLE

OLDEST EXISTING COMMUNISTIC SOCIETY ON CONTINENT.

Something of Their Origin and Beliefs—Numbers Are Now Dwindling Away and Their Lands Passing Into Other Hands.

This people vowed to celibacy soon will be but a name among us; their numbers and property are fading away. Just the other day valuable Shaker lands in Pennsylvania were parted with, a significant action. The Shakers are the oldest existing communistic society on this continent.

Statistics of churches in the United States for 1903 give the number of members of the Shaker society as only 1,000, a mere handful. Fifteen Shaker churches are recorded for that year.

It was back in 1774 the Shaker pilgrims sought the "stern and rockbound coast" of America, not, like those other pilgrims, remaining near shore, but making settlement farther inland. The first small company stayed for awhile at a place about seven miles from Albany, N. Y., but later the church was established at New Lebanon, which became the common center for members in various parts of the country.

A woman, Mother Ann, was the leader that brought the Shakers to America. The Shakers were not one of the many new faiths originating in our land of newness, for on European soil they had begun. It was in the first half of the eighteenth century they arose as a distinct body, but they traced their principles back to the Camisards, or French prophets. In 1705, three members of the sect labored to spread the faith in England, and ere long had a goodly following there. In 1747 a society was formed, with no particular creed but the profession that members would be led as the spirit of God should direct from time to time. Ann Lee joined this society and rose to importance as one to whom special revelation was made. As their spiritual mother she was uniformly addressed as Mother Ann.

SHAKER COSTUMES.

Mother Ann died ten years after coming to America, but the Shakers continued to flourish, societies were formed in scattered parts of the land; in the eastern states, and the west, ever hospitable to new creeds, eagerly welcomed these prophets, the messengers telling of a simpler, purer life.

Charles Nordhoff, who made a study of communistic societies in the United States, writing in 1875 gives an interesting picture of the Shakers, a record of personal acquaintance with certain "families." At that time there were in this country 18 societies scattered over eight states, each society containing several of the so-called families, a family a distinct commune. At that time they owned about 100,000 acres of real estate. Agriculture was the base of the industries of the family, though other avocations were as a rule united with that of farming. The Shakers wore a uniform style of dress, had a generally uniform style of house architecture, were pronounced spiritualists, looked upon themselves as the only true church, "in which revelation, spiritualism, celibacy, oral confession, community, non-resistance, peace, the gift of healing, miracles, physical health and separation from the world are the foundations of the new heavens."

The Dictionary of the Faiths of the World gives in brief this information regarding the society: "The Shakers consist of three classes. (1) Those who unite with the society in religious faith and principle, but do not enter into temporal connection with it. Believers of this class are not controlled by the society as to their property, children, or families. (2) Those who join one of the families, stipulating to devote their services freely and without pecuniary compensation, to promote the common interests of the family to which they belong. (3) Those who enter into contract and covenant to devote themselves and their services, with all they possess, to the service of God and the support of the institution forever, stipulating never to bring debt nor damage, claim nor demand, against the society, nor against any member thereof, for any property or service which they have thus devoted to the uses and purposes of the institution."

Another of the communities desiring equal good for all that has died.

Piersall to Hang.

The jury in the case of James Piersall, colored, at Lexington, on Wednesday afternoon fixed his punishment at death. Thus Fayette county punishes the criminal guilty of the crime for which so many negroes have been lynched. In twenty-five minutes after the submission of the case of James Piersall, charged with the rape of Mrs. Lucy Wagoner, an old lady fifty-eight years of age, the jury empaneled Tuesday, returned the verdict stated above. The law had taken its course, and justice had been given. The crime was committed in the early morning hours of January 21, and within less than a month a special grand jury had indicted and a petit jury convicted the fiend, thus vindicating the "law's delay."

Dogs Becoming a Nuisance.

Several of our leading citizens have asked us if there is no way to prevent the nuisance of the large number of worthless cur dogs that roam our streets continually. We fail to find a city ordinance that touches on this point unless it is the one under the head of nuisances. Under the head of "Duties of the Mayor" we find the following:

"Whenever in his opinion there shall exist in the city danger of hydrophobia, or the running at large of dogs shall become a nuisance, he shall publish in some newspaper published in the city a proclamation prohibiting all persons from permitting their dogs to run at large in the streets, alleys, commons or other public places of the city."

Our city is certainly overstocked with these curs and something should be done to get rid of them before the warm weather arrives.

A Card.

Having purchased the stock of groceries of the late J. F. Prather, and added thereto, we propose to keep continually on hand the very best line of staple and fancy groceries that can be had. We will also carry a line of fine candies, and all kinds of fresh vegetables in season. The firm name will be L. Howard & Co., and we respectfully ask for a share of the public patronage. Fair dealing and handling the very best of goods will be our motto, and we will put every effort forward in trying to please those who deal with us.

Mad Dog Causes Excitement.

A shepherd dog said to be mad caused considerable excitement upon our streets Tuesday afternoon. After a wild chase by several men, who had seen him snap at several little girls and bite a boy, the dog attacked Mr. J. J. Yonkers Water Spaniel on the corner of Main and Fifth, and was chewing him into rags when Mr. I. D. Thompson arrived and quited his shattered nerves with a club. Officer Bishop put the final quietus on him with his "billy." This dog may not have had hydrophobia, but surely something was wrong with him as he had caused terror to the residents in the upper end of town and should have been killed.

Let Everybody Go.

The Christian Endeavor and the Young Ladies' Sewing Club of the Christian Church will give a social in the church parlors on Tuesday evening, February 21, from 7 to 11 o'clock. It is given for the benefit of the poor and suffering of Paris, a most worthy and deserving object, especially at this time when there is so much suffering in the community from the severe weather. No admission will be charged at the door, but each will be asked to bring a free will offering—anything from 10 cents to $10, any larger donations will not be refused. Hot chocolate and wafers will be served. Let everybody go.

That a committee be appointed with power to act to confer with Mrs. Hattie H. Hill in regard to retouching portraits which are to go in the new court house. Squires, Thomas, Dejanet and Howell were appointed.

June has two daughters, fair to see—
In truth, they rule in queenly state—
One is the coy June Bride-to-be
And one the Sweet Girl Graduate.
Each sees the future dawning bright,
And each her fortune blesses;
Each, also, is a pleasing sight;
And each is buying dresses.

The brain of each has madly whirled
Considering the wisest plan—
The one on "How to Rule the World,"
The other "How to Rule the Man."
Each feels that now she knows her fate
And may discard her guesses;
Each has her mind on one great date,
And each is buying dresses.

The graduate regards all men
As brethren in their weal or woe;
The bride reflects that now and then She's said she'd be "your sister, though."
Each builds her castle in the air
With dreams that she possesses;
Each has no time to think of care,
And each is buying dresses.

'Tis the eternal feminine
That long has baffled fool and sage
To analyze or to define
In this or any other age;
Who knows what great philosophy
Is hid beneath their tresses—
The graduate and bride-to-be
And each is buying dresses.

CHAPTER VII.

A WOMAN'S DARING.

With infinite sympathy Benton and the orderlies aided Dr. Chilton to harness his horses to the old fashioned, side-seated, half 'bus, half ambulance he had brought with him from Warren—borrowed from some field hospital, as the best available vehicle in which to go for and convey his wounded boy. The doctor was tremulous with dread and distress on account of his beloved daughter, and utterly unable to account for her strange disappearance.

He drove away, with all speed toward stone bridge, pass and papers in his outer pocket, so as to be able to promptly show his credentials to any sentries or patrols, and Benton was trying, half an hour later, to satisfactorily account for what he had heard and thought he had seen that day, when Carver came for him to say his horse was dead lame. He had been directed to remain behind and to see the last detachments across the Run, then to rejoin the chief as soon as he had found Benton. This, therefore, was Benton's chance and he begged.

"Let me go back," said he, "and you take your orderly's horse, if you can't get another, and report to the general in the morning."

And so, about ten o'clock Fred had reached the stone bridge, found it held by a small guard, and with that guard was a young officer who had been at the Robinson and Henry houses two hours before and had heard all about the circumstances connected with Miss Chilton's disappearance—had indeed been there for some time and had seen her. She had come to the rear door with Mr. Henry about five o'clock, and very sweetly and smilingly had told the guards her brother was sleeping at last and that she needed a little fresh air. Lieut. Ferguson was in command of the guard, "And you know what an eye for a pretty girl Ferguson has," and he begged her to consider the premises hers, and probably wanted to walk with her, but for 20 minutes she tripped about the old, dismantled garden, going all around it as though interested in what was left of the hollyhocks and sunflowers, and about six, Lewis came and called her and said supper was ready, and she seemed reluctant to go in, but finally yielded, telling Ferguson that if there were no objections she would finish her walk later. It might be dark and chilly, but she knew the garden now and would throw a shawl over her head. Ferguson said, "By all means," and sure enough, right after dark, out she came again, slim and fragile looking, but well wrapped up, and Henry begged her not to stay out long. We saw her flitting about in the dim light of the campfire and lanterns a moment or two, then she seemed to take to the outer edge of the enclosure, and then, by Jove, she disappeared totally. They hunted everywhere, and while they were hunting Capt. Carver rode up with orders for Ferguson and was told what had happened. He was compelled to leave at once, but the search continued. "It is a perfect mystery," said the lieutenant, removing his cap and wiping his brow.

Then while they were talking, the sentries challenged at the bridge, and, to the amazement of Benton, who should appear but old Dr. Chilton with his country omnibus and the strange explanation that he had lost the road—got way south toward the lower fords and had been turned back by no less a personage than Gen. Auger, whom he had met at Washington several years before when the general was a captain of regulars. Benton's guarantee to the guard was sufficient, and they let the doctor go on his westward way and Benton went with him, that he might give the anxious father these further particulars as they trotted along the dim, shadowy vista of the famous old thoroughfare. Benton had determined now to revisit the Henry house and make a still further investigation.

But he never reached it. Pushing westward along the pike they noted that all was darkness about the old Robinson place or the rise to the south, and then were surprised to see lights flitting about the stone house, close to the road on the right hand side. Then voices in excited tones were heard within. Two or three were harsh and threatening, one was uplifted in mingled plea and protest, and then, from the direction of the Sudley road, only a few yards away, came shadowy forms, just visible under the starlight.

"Halt!" was the instant order from Benton's lips, low, yet commanding, and his revolver seemed to leap from the holster. "Who are you?"

"Patrol—Nineteenth Indiana," was the prompt answer. "Is that you, Lieut. Benton? Three of our fellows strayed away, and the captain ordered me down here to look 'em up. They've called in the guard at the Henry house—where you were this afternoon."

"Your men are here—in this house, and you're just in time, I fancy," for now there were sounds of scuffle and violence. Benton was off his horse in a second and, followed by the sergeant and two or three men, hurried himself at the door, which gave way before his impetuous rush, and in another moment he had sprung through one dismantled room into another at the rear of the house, and there came upon a sight that explained the whole situation—a demijohn—the mate to the one he had seen at Centerville—stood on a rude sideboard, with only one civilian to defend it against three sturdy lads in full marching order who had evidently just had enough "peach" to be mad for more. One of them had grappled with the owner, the other two were watching a chance for a leap at the prize when Benton and the sergeant burst in upon them.

Shame-stricken, caught in the act, the three marauders faced the rescuing party and sheepishly, foolishly, furtively glanced about them, from the tall staff officer to the grinning comrades at his back.

"Are these your missing men, sergeant?" demanded Benton.

"They are, sir."

"What do they owe you, sir?" demanded the aide, turning to the elderly man at the sideboard who was nursing a bruised throat, yet looking infinitely thankful.

"YOU'RE OURS!"

"They don't owe me—except for a few drinks of peach—I'd a given them that gladly if they'd said they were dry and hadn't any money, but when it came to takin' the demijohn I 'lowed it was robbery."

"How dare you men break in here?" demanded Benton, sternly. "You know the orders against plundering. Take their names, sergeant, and turn them over to the guard when you overtake the regiment."

"May I say a word, sir?" asked one of the trio, stepping forward, with a shifty salute, for all three seemed sobered by their plight.

"Say on."

"We didn't break in, sir. The door was open, the light in the window. We were down here before eight o'clock with the sergeant, trying to find news of the young lady, and this fellow can tell about her and won't tell. It was that we came to see about. He set up the peach to keep us from 'peaching,' and the scamp had the impudence to grin over his own conceit."

"Take those men outside," ordered Benton, implacably, "and ask Dr. Chilton to step in here a moment. I'm afraid you're hurt," he continued, for the man had turned pale and was leaning against the sideboard for support. At the sound of the name "Chilton" he started and glared. Obeyingly the sergeant marched his prisoners to the outer air, and, presently, in came the doctor. One quick glance passed between him and the pallid Virginian.

"You here now, Jennings?" cried the newcomer; "and hurt? How did it happen? When did you get here? Have you seen—do you know anything of Rosalie?" and by this time his practiced finger was at the other's pulse—the other who for all reply glanced significantly, warningly toward Benton, and seemed striving to bid his friend be silent. But the doctor was all impatience.

"Speak man! This gentleman is a friend—a friend in need. You have seen her. Is she safe? Is she harmed?"

"Safe," was the sententious answer, with still another significant look, disregarded as before by Chilton.

"But what does it mean? Why should she leave Henry's? She was to take care of her brother till I returned. Had anybody dared—affront her—there? Where is she, Jennings?"

Answer me, man!

But despite the almost agonized appeal, despite the assurance that Benton, though in the garb of the enemy, was yet a friend, the Virginian could not reply. "Wait, doctor—wait till you see Judge Armistead. He'll tell you the full story. He's coming over from Hopewell this evening."

"Judge Armistead—here? And she went with him, do you mean—and left my boy? Why, Jennings, I can't believe it."

And then the Hoosier sergeant again came to the door.

"Sharp firing, lieutenant, south of us! Shall I follow Maj. May or turn after the guard toward the Lewis place?"

Leaving the two Virginians Benton stepped outside. The moon was just peeping above the trees toward the distant heights of Centerville and near by objects were become more readily visible in the faint and mystic light. Somewhere to the south—toward the Junction—Stuart's venturesome troops had come in view of slowly retreating parties of the Western brigade and a fairly brisk fusillade was the result.

For a moment the officer listened to the spiteful crackle of carbine and rifle, then answered the question. "Better follow the major—and lively, too. I'll catch you before you've gone a quarter of a mile."

He felt that it was now unsafe to return to the Henry house. The guard was gone. The chances were that within a few minutes Stuart's troops would be coming up the Sudley road from the south. He would say a word of farewell to Dr. Chilton, then follow his men. Leaving the horses with the orderly in front, he once more turned, and as he entered the rear room, stopping a most excited conversation, he was amazed to see the back door which had been shut and barred three minutes before, swiftly closing behind a slender figure in the trim frock of gray—the uniform of the confederate service. He saw the same form flash by the northward window, and instead of pursuing, whirled about, sprang through the front door and round to the westward side of the house just missing collision with a panting corporal who cried, "Reb officer ran down this way from the Henry house. Me and Hinks followed." All in an instant then his suspicions were confirmed.

All in a second's time, it seemed, he had hurled himself on a dim, fragile form and, clasping it in his arms, strained it, despite furious struggles, to his breast. "Paul—Paul!" he cried. "Don't you know me?—Fred? Surrender, you blessed boy reb, surrender. Heavens, man, don't scratch!" for two furious little hands were tearing at his cheeks. "Speak, you sinner. Haven't I known since five o'clock 'twas you I saw at the window?"

But so far from speaking, only panting incoherencies escaped the lips of his captive. Straining, squirming, the slender form writhed and palpitated in his clasp, a heart was throbbing like mad against his, and while he still clung with one arm to his prize, he seized and captured with the other hand a long, slim-fingered, sharp-nosed little member that was bent, apparently, on tearing out his eyes, and then, swaying and staggering, Benton bore his prize into the moonlit space beyond just as the doctor and the Virginian, lantern-bearing, came stumbling out into the night. The yellow gleam fell full on a beautiful, dark, flushing face, framed in masses of dusky hair tumbling about the sloping shoulders and down the slender back—for the natty slouch hat had been lost somewhere in the scuffle—fell upon glowing, indignant, magnificent eyes, upon flashing white teeth, upon lovely, ruddy, parted lips, and in amazement, yet still clinging to his lovely captive, Benton stammered:

"Not Paul, but, whoever you are—my prisoner!"

"Not Paul—nor your prisoner!" was the sudden, exultant answer, in a voice that ever since early evening had been ringing in his ears. "Not your prisoner. You're ours! Do you hear?" And out of the silence of the night there burst the thunder of galloping hoofs, close upon them, sweeping like a tornado over the open fields to the northwest, and then there came, whirling into view and surging all about them a swarm of shouting, jubilant cavaliers—Stuart's Virginians in all their early glory.

CHAPTER VIII.

A BADGER IN THE TOILS.

The rest of that night was long a blank in Benton's mind. He had vague recollections of a furious struggle, of tramping horses, of shining, whirling saber blades, of a leap to saddle and frantic effort to cut his way through circling foes, of riders' shouts, a woman's scream, a crushing blow that nearly split his skull, and then—oblivion until morning; and the face bending fondly, anxiously over him, as he opened his eyes, was that of Paul Ladue, and the first words that faltered from his lips were: "Paul, poor old boy! How sick you must have been!" for, white and haggard and distressed, the winsome features of the year gone by—the dream face of his chosen friend, seemed aged and worn almost beyond recognition.

Then there were hours of trundling over rough, half frozen roads, with a racking pain in his fevered head and incessant thirst. Bearded faces came and peered at him from time to time, not in enmity or hate, but almost in soldier sympathy, and one young fellow in a gray jacket and cap three sizes too big for him, perched on the back of the ambulance in which he rode and gave him frequently cool water from his canteen. From time to time Dr. Chilton came and ministered to and comforted him. "It's the fortune of war, my dear suh," said he. "Yes'dy my boy, my daughter and young Ladue yahduh were all in your hands. Now it's just the other way. Be patient, suh. Once across the Rappahannock we'll take to the cyahs."

This side the river the railway is all ripped up."

Four patients had Chilton to care for now, it seems, and by Gen. Johnston's orders, fast as they could possibly be transported, he was conveying them under cavalry escort beyond the river. In very serious plight was his own gallant boy, the lieutenant of the First Virginia cavalry, to rescue whom his comrades had made that wide detour and sudden and surprising swoop from the northward side of the pike. Reclining in the second ambulance throughout the morning hours was Miss Chilton, suffering both from shock and partial collapse, for she had been knocked down by a rushing, riderless horse in the midst of the melee in front of the stone house and severely bruised and shaken. Third on the list of invalids, but insisting on remaining in saddle, was Lieut. Paul Ladue—the unhappiest man in the party, worn down with grief and anxiety. Fourth and last was Fred Benton, with a headaged skull and a broken arm—captured in the moment of supposed victory.

At Gainesville they had been joined by Judge Armistead, an honorable and beloved neighbor, who since the outbreak of the unhappy war had retired to his old country home near Hopewell Gap, and with the judge was Lieut. Paul Ladue, who had been self-incarcerated until he could exchange the garb in which he had made his escape from the Henry house the previous evening, for the stunning regimentals still in possession of Rosalie Chilton.

Already the story of the romantic and stirring episode was going from bearded lip to lip among the riders of Stuart's Horse, and before the second sunset following Fred Benton's capture he had heard almost every word of it.

The dark night of the fourth of March had been a sorry one for Paul Ladue. Ever since the previous week he and his comrades had been looking for the second coming of the Yankee columns from the forts in front of Washington. Day after day, armed with field-glasses, in belfry, tree or steeple, Johnston's lookouts watched for the first sight of screening cavalry. They were all "green" at such work, north and south both. Already had the northern volunteers, marching by night, on converging roads, twice opened fire and killed or wounded several in each party before discovering their blunder. It was all nervous business for new and inexperienced officers and, as luck would have it, Paul Ladue, only just up from a debilitating fever, found himself commanding an infantry outpost north of Bull Run. No cavalry had been in their front at sunset. None had passed out that way, and when at brisk trot, all ignorant of their proximity to the pickets, the confederate troopers came surging down the lane, never hearing, probably, and certainly never heeding the order to halt, Ladue shouted fire and, sorely wounded, young Chilton fell from his horse.

The County Justice and Old Age

I well remember one case before a justice in which I acted as respondent's counsel in a criminal action, and in which an older and well-known attorney was my opponent. As I thought then, and as I know now, the law and the evidence was well in favor of my client, and at the close of the arguments I looked with great confidence for a prompt acquittal. Judge of my astonishment when my unfortunate client was found guilty and sentenced to 30 days in jail. I promptly entered an appeal and furnished sureties to prosecute the same. Before I left the court room the justice took occasion to take me aside and say: "Young man, I kinder thought ye were right, but I knowed Judge W— (naming my opponent) is a sight older'n you be, and a sight better lawyer'n you be, and so of course I gin him judgment."—Judge Shute, in Leslie's Monthly Magazine.

The Impossible Proofreader.

Former Employee—And what's become of Balemp, who used to be working in the proofroom?

Editor (sadly)—Gone. Hated to part with him, too. But the pressure became unendurable. Although he made me say that old Munybags, who died, had "by industry and frugality accumulated a lonesome future," when I wrote it "handsome fortune," I fargave him and let him stay on. But when he had me say in a society item that Miss Fitznoodle's coiffure "was frightful by reason of the awful derangement of her soft brains," instead of "delightful by reason of the careful arrangement of her soft braids," the pressure brought to bear by influential citizens was something I could no longer withstand.—Baltimore American.

He Knew the Instrument.

Mr. Clancy, the blacksmith, had sprained his wrist and went to the doctor. The doctor started to take down a bottle of fluid from his cabinet, but found the bottle empty.

After a moment's search he called for his assistant, and said, "Will you get me a couple of those phials from the closet up-stairs?"

"Files!" cried Mr. Clancy, in alarm. "Sure, if ye're goin' to work at it wid tools can't ye take a smoother wan?"

"George, dear," said the bride of three weeks, "I wish you would telephone to the liverman before it is too late."

"All right, darling," answered George. "What am I to say to him?"

"Tell him," said her bridegroom, "to send up a pound of liver in time for breakfast to go with our bacon."—Chicago Daily News.
